

North American Lake Management Society (NALMS) 2010
November 3-5, 2010
Cox Convention Center, Oklahoma City, OK

The Oklahoma Clean Lakes and Watershed Association (OCLWA) invites you to visit Oklahoma City for NALMS 30th International Symposium. OKC is a perfect venue in November with colorful foliage lining its walkways through a crisp autumn air. You will be spending your evenings in OKC's famous revitalized Bricktown, strolling its the Riverwalk of shops, restaurants and warm pubs nestled in the heart of the Downtown area. Let Oklahoma City surprise and charm you with entertainment galore and an atmosphere perfectly suited for spending time with old friends or making new ones!

The 2010 NALMS Symposium will provide ample opportunities for you, the stewards of our lakes and watersheds, to discover and ponder the very cutting-edge of our science.

The theme of this year's Symposium, "Managing the Challenges in Water Resources" addresses the inevitable challenge we have before us of increasing pressures on a finite resource. Workshops, concurrent sessions, and educational programming will provide information on the latest issues and ideas on lake management to ensure a sustainable future of our lake resources.

Don't miss the chance to network with some of the most knowledgeable leaders in our field today. Not simply a series of lectures, this Conference will intrigue you with real discussion and feedback on the latest information out there today. Come join in! Ask questions! Share your experiences in our open sessions and enrich the Symposium for all!

Centrally located to all of the Americas, OKC makes it a short flight from almost anywhere! The Symposium will be held at the Cox Convention Center near all of the things you'll want to experience downtown. The many attractions include the beautiful OKC Museum of Art, Botanical Gardens, NBA Basketball and, of course, our Riverwalk. Be sure to run or bike the scenic Oklahoma River trail or join in on NALMS' Clean Lake Classic 5K race! Take a 10 minute trip to our historic OKC Stock Yards for best steak and the most authentic and unique western wear in the country!
